The disabled steamer Bristol arrived in port from Bristol, England, yesterday, eleven days overdue. On Nevember 8, in latitude 43° north, longitude 58° west, the propellor became disabled, but the nature and extent of the accident the captain was disinclined to state yesterday. An air of mysterv seemed to pervade the vessel. After the accident to the propellor the vessel was put under sail until Friday, when about 550 miles northeast of Sandy Hook she was taken in tow by the steamble. RES OVERDUE. for the propellor the vessel was put under sail until Friday, when about 550 miles northeast of Sandy Hook she was taken in tow by the steamship Nawarth Castle, from New-Orleans for Revel, and broughe to this port. Captain Symons, of the Bristol, reports that November 10, in latitude 41° 03' north. longitude 59° 15' west, signals were made to a three-masted schooner-rigged steamer with black smoke-pipe, with a broad white band around it, on which was what appeared to be a red star. The steamer was headed east. No attention was paid to the signals. The Nawarth Castle was signalled at 2 p. m., November 19, and after a consultation of the two captains the Bristol was taken in tow. One of the hawsers parted, and after repairs were made the other hawser parted. Another hawser was taken to the Bristol next morning, and soon afterward the wind and sea began to rise, with a lower barometer. At 6 p. m. it was blowing a strong gale, with a violent sea and heavy rains. Two hours afterward violent squalls were met, and then the wind veered to the northwest, increasing to a terrific gale at midnight, causing both vessels to labor heavily in the high cross seas. At 2:30 a. m., November 21, both tow-lines were marted. The Nawarth Castle remained close by all to a terrific gale at midnight, causing both vessels to labor heavily in the high cross seas. At 2:30 a. m., November 21, both tow-lines were parted. The Nawarth Castle remained close by all day, and the weather having moderated at sendown, efforts were made to float a line to the Bristel. In the first attempt the buoy and 120 fathoms of line were lost, and, failing in the second attempt, the Nawarth Castle stood off until 6 a. m., November 22, when boats were lowered and tow-lines made fast again. The vessels made slow progress against the northwest wind and sea, and reached Sandy Hook Wednesday night.

The steamship Hathersage arrived from Cardiff yesterday after a rough voyage of seventeen days. Continuous head gales and seas were experienced during the past twelve days.

The Assyrian Monarch is still at sea, and was signted by the steamship Donac, under sail, in latitude 49° north, longitude 49° west. This would indicate that she had drifted about 500 miles in a northwesterly direction since she was sighted November 7. The Donau tried to low her, but owing to the tremendous swoll was unable to get a hawser aboard of her. As she was able to sail, and there to the tremendous swall was unable to get a hawser abourd of her. As she was able to sail, and therefore not in immediate danger, the Donau left her. The steamships Volmer and Henry Edye, from Antwerp, and the Denmark, from Londou, are four days oversing.

A fruitless search has been made in this and other cities east of the Mississippi for two months for Hugo Rensen, a citizen of New-Orleans, who disappeared in September. Mr. Renesh was foreman in the car-shops of the Crescent City Street Railroad in New-Orleans, and invented an iron hame-strap which he patented and intended to put on the market. In August he came North to arrange for its manufacture and to place his widowed mother in the home of her daughter at New-Haven, Conn. Mr. Rensch remained with her two or this weeks and then set out for New-York. He left this city September 11, to return home by way of Cincinnati and St. Lonis. He went away from his room at No. 146 Spring-st., in the afternoon, with the expressed intention of taking the half past four o'clock train for Philadelphia, where he expected to meet a friend at No. 1.108 Vine-st. The friend waited two days, but Rensch did not come. His trunk, packed with his clothes and presents for his intended but Rensch did not come. His trunk, packed with his clothes and presents for his intended bride, reached New-Orleans by express, but of its owner no word ever came. After waiting several weeks, his friends telegraphed to his brother. Charles Rensch, who was in Europe, and he returned promptly to aid in the search. A systematic inquiry has been made along the entire route of his proposed journey, but no trace has been found of the missing man. He was last seen going down Spring-st., in the direction of the North River, carrying a leather satched in which, among other things, was an iron model of his patent, and the conclusion has been reached that he met his death before he left the city, or while crossing the river. Mr. Rensch was thirty-two years old, lie was in perfect health and of correct habits. He were dark clothes and carried a gold watch and cham, and had about $300 in his packets. TAKING PASSAGE FOR FRANCE.

Several persons of distinction sailed yesterday on the steamstip Canada, of the French Line, for Havre. Before the departure of the steamer the decks and the pier had much the appearance usual at the height of summer travel, a large number of the friends of the passengers being present. Several boats from the French flog-ship Magneienne and the ram Damont D'Urville carried to the pier a large number of the officers of those vessels, in full unform, to witness the departure of the commandant of the Squadron, Admiral de Freyennet, and his side-de-camp, Luctemant A. P. Reguloux. Among others present were Chevalier Edmond de Bremi, the French Cossul-General, and M. de Bebian, general agent of the line. A FAMILY OF BEGGARS.

Joseph Maher, age eleven, and William, his brother, age seven, were taken into coustody yesterday by Officer Chiardi, of the Society for the Prevention of Cruesty to Children, who found them begging in a Twenty-third Street Crosstown car. He took them before Justice Bixby, at the Yorkville Police Court, where they were temporarily committed. The parents of these children are known to the Society, which has had much trouble with them. They have seven children, the oldest of whom is seventeen years of age, and the youngest eight months. Last January the Society had four of the children committed to the Catholic Protectory. The parents, through the Children's Aid Society, obtained the release of the children on the promise that they were going to Chicago, but failed to keep their word.

PRETENDING TO HAVE ONLY ONE ARM. John Arnish, age fifty, wearing a field uniform, begged from passers by yesterday, at Sixty-eighthet, and Fourth-ave. An empty coat sleeve hung by his side; and when Roundsman Steinkamp asked him why he begged, he said he was a poor soldier with only one arm. The roundsman saw that he was feigning, and, feeling under the empty sleeve, found his arm snugly tucked under his coat. In the York ville Police Court Arnisa was committed to the workhouse for three months as a vagrant.

A PISTOL SHOT FOR A DRINK OF LIQUOR. George Kingare, a bartender employed in a liquor store at No. 498 Second-ave., caused the arrest, Tuesday evening, of Patrick Toner, of No. 14 East Thirty-fifth-st., on a charge of attempted felonious assault. An examination of the case was held in the Yorkville Police Court yesterday. It was shown by the testimony that Toner entered the bar-room, and after taking a drink of liquor, refused to pay for it. A quarrel ensued, and he drew and discharged a pistol. He alleges that he did it only to scare those present. He was held in $1,000 bail for trial.

BOARD DETERMINED TO SUPPRESS THE EVIL.

The police, in accordance with renewed instructions, continued yesterday their crusade against the lotteries by arresting a number of dealers. Officer Leahy, of the Fourth Precinct, arraigned George Edgar, of No. 488 Grand-st. Brooklyn, before Justice Patterson, at the Tombs Police Court, on complaint of George Smith, of No. 11 Peil-st., for dealing in lottery policy at No. 66 Beckman-st., New-York. araigned in the Jefferson Market Police Court by Officer Brennan of the Sixteenth Precinct, who said that he had arrested them for running a policy shop. On being questioned by Justice Wandell, he said that one of the prisoners was buying and the other selling a slip. His answers were vague and the case was discussed. Justice Wandell called the attention of Sergeaut Williams of the Court Squad, to the fact that Officer Brennan was not sober. The sergeant after conversing with the officer said that he did not think him intoxicated. No further action was taken.

Commissioner Nichols said yesterday that th Commissioner Nichols said yesterday that the Police Board intended to suppress the lottery traffic in the city, fit could be accomplished by legal means. The Police Captains are to be held to strict accountability, and the Commissioners hope to reduce the evit to a minimum at least. The caref obstacle encountered by the police is the fact that under espionage, the lottery dealers refuse to accept money for the tickets they sell, but take the name and address of the customer and send the tickets by mail. The bayer drops his dollar in a box provided for the purpose and thus cannot swear that he paid it to anyone whom the police can arrest.

THE FARRAGUT STATUE.

DESCRIPTION OF THE FIGURE AND THE PEDESTAL

THE FARRAGUT STATUE.

A DESCRIPTION OF THE FIGURE AND THE PEDESTAL. The statue of Farragut, modelled by Augustus St. Gaudena, and cast in bronze by Gruet, of Paris, which arrived here in July, has been awaiting the completion of the pedestal for its erection in Madison Square. This pedestal is to be a novelty, and, it is beheved, will be unique of its kind in this country. From the usual square block upon which the statue will-treet, a wing will extend ont on each side, curving around to the front and making the form, as a whole, almost that of a semi-circle. From one end to the other of these wings will be a distance of sixteen feet. The platform and seats running along inside wings will be reached by a flight of three steps. The distance from the seats to the top of the wings will be four feet. The steps, platform seats, wings and pedestal proper with all be of blue stone. On each side of the base of the statue will appear figures, and the wings and base are to be scored with many lines representing the action of the water. At the ends of the wings, in front, will be carved the figures of dolphins.

The statue is of heroic size, being nine feet in height, as is also the pedestal unon which it rests. The motive of the work is to represent a sailor standing on the deck of his vessel. Farragut's firmly set face has a look of intensity as if his gaze were steadily fixed on something about of the vessel. He wears full uniform. The feet are firmly planted a little distance apart, as if to withstand the rolling of the ship. On the right side the coat below the belt is blown away from the body by the wind. The right arm hangs down by the side, and the fingers are chuched. The left arm is bent across the body, and the hand holds a pair of marine glasses. On the left side is the sword. The uniform is that of the first Admiral, the rank held by Farragut at his death. On the front of the goid-laced naval cap appears an eagle surrounding an anchor. The shoulder-straps and three wide chevrons on the sleeves indicate the ra sword-belt has a heavy buckle in front showing an eagle surrounded by a wreath.

Just below the statue, at the upper edge of the vase, appears the name. "David Giasgow Farragot," below which an unsheathed sword stands out in bold relief. On the right wing of the semi-circular pedesial near the base is a bas-relief representing Loyalty. This is the sitting figure of a woman, her hair blown out by the wind. The right arm, fully extended, rests upon the right knee, the hand drooping slightly. The left hand rests upon the left leg, holding a scroll. A coloristic inscription, reciting the purpose of the statue, will occupy the remaining space of the right wing. It will be in capitals throughout, somewhat in the Roman style. On the left wing will be a bas-relief representing Courage, and an inscription embodying the fellowing facts in Farragot's life:

The rear of this semi-circular pedestal will probably be almost perfectly plain, and its height from the ground in the middle will be nine feet.

The officer at once gave chase to overtake the man, who concealed himself in a cellar at Thirteenthest, and Tenth-ave. Kenny went into the cellar, when a desperate struggle took place. The thief refused to surrender, and, drawing a pistol, attempted to shoot the officer, who threw himself on the man and tried to wrench the weapon from his girsp. The cries of the efficer attracted the attention of Thomas Crawford, of No. 507 West Nineteenth-st., who was passing, and he went to the officer's assistance. The man was taken into custody and gave his name as Harrington.

Mrs. McNamara appeared in court vesterday and identified aim as one of the men who had attempted to rob her of property valued at $125. Anong the merested spectators in the court room was a young man who was taken to the bar by Officer Kerny on suspicion of being Harrington's accomplice. He gave his name as Henry Smith, of No. 326 East Forty-sixth-st., and said he came into court to get warm, and never had seen the prisoner before. He was not identified by Mrs. McNamara, and was remanded until to-day, when a daughter of the complainant, who saw both thieves, will testify. TO BE TRIED FOR MURDER.

TO BE TRIED FOR MURDER.

Arthur McCagney was shot and killed on the night of November 17, in a liquor-shop at Twenty-nunth-st, and Nunth-ave, by Frederick Holbrook. The two men quarrelied about a woman. Officer McCanill parted them early in the evening, and McCagney went away swearing that he would "get even" with Holbrook. Abut midnight the two men met in the hiquor-shep. McCagney challenged his adversary, and struck him. A fight ensued. Holbrook drew a pistol and a shot was fired. McCagney ran into the back room, crying that he was shot. Holbrook followed him and the fight was renewed. Two more shots were fired while the men were together. Officer McCahill was called to the place and found McCagney dying. In front of his eigar-store near-by stood Holbrook, coolly smoking. He admitted that he shot McCagney, but spid that he had acted in self-detence.

Such was the story brought out yesterday at the inquest. Holbrook was present, a prisoner, and restreated his claim that he had acted in self-defence. The jury in the verdict charged him with murder, and he was committed to the Tombs to await trial.

STILL HOPING TO GET THE PARK SITE. STILL HOPING TO GET THE PARK SITE.

The Committee on Sites of the World's Fair Commission had a meeting yesterday at the offices of the Commission, No. 317 Broadway, and it was expected that a further report would be brought forward relative to the particular portion of Central Park which the committee wishes to acquire for the purpose of the Exhibition. No further report was made, however, and in fact there was no business before the meeting, so that after a desultory conversation it adjourned.

A meeting of the Executive Committee, was held directly afterward; at which about ten of the members were present. Nothing except routine business was transacted, but as soon as this was finished there was an informal conversation relative to the site, and it was stated that

"Has the report of the engineers sent to survey Central Park site been received?"

"I do not think it has."

"Was it not to have been laid before the Park Commissioners for their consideration prior to the meeting on Wednesday next?"

"I believe so; but I do not think this will be done now. In all probability our committee will carry the engineers' report with it, and there will be a regular discussion as to what part we may have. To our first proposition the Park Commissioners may say:

"Well, you can't have that;' then they may go on and say: 'You can't have that;' hen they may go on that.' And then we shall bring forward the site we have chosen, and show that it does not materially affect the improved portion of the Park, and would not injure Central Park in any way, but would benefit it. And I think we shall get it," he added after a pause.

"But suppose the Park Commissioners refuse you."

TOO YOUNG TO BECOME A HUSBAND. TOO YOUNG TO BECOME A HUSBAND.

Mrs. C. A Barnes, of No. 15 Broome-st., Brooklyn, went to the Seventh Precinct Police Station in that city yesterday to ask how the marriage of her son, who is under age, yould be annulled. The details of the case show that the boy, Mrs. Barnes's son by her first marriage, James F. Farrington, age seventeen, was married to Susan M. White Sunday by the Rev. E. A. Hanier, pastor of the Christian Church of the Evangel. The youth represented to the clergyman that he was over twenty years of age, claimed to have no parents living, and gave a faise residence. Mr. Hanier, who has not been long in Brooklyn, noticed the difference in the ages of the persons wishing to be married, the bride appearing to be several years the older, and he asked advice from the Rev. W. H. Simonson, pastor of an adjoining charch, who thought the parties old enough to get married. Not reassured, Mr. Hanier desired the presence of the girls parents, and her mother was sent for and became one of the witnesses of the ceremony, which was then performed. It was agreed by the couple to keep the marriage a secret from Farrington's mother, but she found a card in her son's pocket, which was written to Mr. Hanier, and contained a request to see him after service on Sunday evening. She then investigated and ascertanced the facts. She declares that her son has not known Miss White more than five days. The boy has been forbidden to leave his home until an effort to annul the marriage has been made. Legal proceedings will begin immediate. his home until an effort to annul the marriage ha

October 23, and who died November 1. who accidentally shot himself while examining a revelver. October 23, and who died November 14. Contradictory testimony was given by physicians who attended him. Dr. H. J. Johnston said that he attended Mr. Haggerty for seventeen days. On the sixteenth day he was up and dressest. The day after Dr. Johnston was called to consult with other physicians, whom he did not know, and they advised opening the patient's skull to see if there was a deposit of pus in the brain or lead poisoning. The patient complained of nothing except a slight numoness in the fingers. The witness opposed any operation from fear of fatal effects and a belief that recovery was probable. He then went away and did not again see Mr. Haggerty.

Mrs. Haggerty testified that, becoming dissatisfied with Dr. Johnston's treatment, she called in Dr. Corey. Dr. Corey testified that he found Mr. Haggerty, when he was called in, November 9, in a semi-conscions condition, and that the wound in his head was discharging matter. He consulted with Dr. Dodge, and with his assistance removed several fragments of the skull, which pressed upon the brain. Dr. Dodge's evidence confirmed the diagnosis. The verdict of the jury was death from the accidental discharge of a pistol. Three physicians were on the jury.

Horton lives at Far Rockaway, where he is entaged in the coal business. In 1879, Maguire was pastor of the M. E. Church at that place, of which Horton Was a member. The complaint alleges that the defendant charged Horton with misappropriating money that had been raised for Mr. Maguire's benefit, and with selting coal at short weight. The plantiff testified that he was tried before a meeting of the trustees, at which Magnire presided, and that he was dismissed from fellowship with the church. SOCIALISTS FROM GERMANY.

IMMIGRATION OF NEWSPAPER MEN-ARRIVAL IN NEW-YORK OF AN IRRECONCILABLE OPPONENT OF PRINCE BISMARCK.

OP PRINCE BISMARCK.

One effect of the recent action of the Imperial Government of Germany against the Socialists has been to do away with the only remaining organs of the party. The Gerichtszeilung appeared many years ago under the name of Hamburger-Atleant Folksbelts, and was subsequently suppressed, but only to appear again under the present name, The decree of November 3 swept off the entire staff of this pournal. Editors, reporters and compositors, all received twenty-four hours' notice to decree of twenty-four hours' notice to desire the country. These persons and others of similar opinions are expected to arrive in this city to-day by the steamer Silesia from Hamburg. Among them are Mr. Aner, an ex-member of the German Reichstag and one of the chief writers on The Gerichtszeilung: Mr. Dietz, the publisher; Messra, Praast, Bloss, Oedenburg, and Hilmann, of the editorial staff; and Mars, Bammann, Schiele, Kentel, and Greifenberg, compositors.

The first Socialist to leave Hamburg fyr New-York affect the proclamation of the state of stege was perhaps the most prominent and certainly the best known in Germany. The old veteran of Socialism intends to remain in this country only while the frontiers of his fatherland are closed to him. His belief in the ultimate deliverance of Germany from what he terms the "yoke of Prince Bismarck" is firm.

At the last meeting of the New-York County Medical Society, the president was empowered to appoint a committee, if necessary, to take action regarding the use of a part of Central Park as a site for the World's Fair. A resolution to that effect, offered by Dr. Jacobi, emphasizes the necessity for sanitary reasons, of preserving the park intact as a recreation ground for the people.
